Fellowship 1989/1990 at the Center
for International Affairs, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

The Community institutions will send a senior official to the Center for International Affairs, at Harvard University, as a Fellow for the academic year September 1, 1989 to June 30, 1990 ; applications are invited from suitable qualified candidates at A3 level or preferably higher.

Fellowship at the C.F.I.A.

The principal objectives of the Center for International Affairs are to encourage interdisciplinary research on major problems in the field of international affairs and to promote and pursue an interest in international affairs at Harvard University, Largely through informal educational activities among faculty members, fellows, research associates, students and various other groups.

Each year the Center gathers a group of about twenty people involved in international affairs, mainly senior officials from various countries around the world, who spend a full academic year as Fellows of the Center doing intensive study.

Fellows are appointed Officers of the University and thus have access to virtually all the resources of the University. They are colleagues of the Faculty, not students. The Program is unstructured so that Fellows are free to pursue their own interests in their own way. Some concentrate on research and writing, sometimes with a view to publication; others focus on new developments in their fields, attending seminars and Lectures at Harvard, MIT and other universities in the Boston area. Still others will organize a seminar or workshop on a specific subject of interest. Most do some of all of these. Each Fellow is encouraged to write at least one serious analytical paper on a topic of choice.

Individual work is conducted in a framework of study which stimulates comparative analysis and the exploration of common interests. With varied geographical and professional backgrounds, with different ways of looking at the world and diverse habits of analysis and decision-making. Fellows have much to teach their colleagues as well as to learn from them. The University environment permits a quality of uninhibited discussion almost never achieved in official contacts.

The Center takes broad interest in European Community policies. Areas of particular interest include the role of the European Community in the world (e.g. international relations of a strategic, political or commercial character), the evolution of Community institutions, as well as Community policies in the field of new technologies, for example.

Besides participating in seminars on a wide variety of topics in international affairs organised by the Center, the Commission Fellow would also be associated with the Center for European Studies, and would in this capacity be required to animate the continuing "Seminar on the European Community", and to share the Chairmanship of the Seminar with a senior member of the Faculty of C.F.I.A.

In addition, he/she might be asked by other departments of Harvard University to organise or help to organise courses, seminars or study groups on some aspects of the European Community. He/she could also be asked by the Commission's Washington Delegation to speak on other occasions.

Selection criteria

So far as the EC institutions are concerned, the main selection criteria will be the overall calibre of the candidate, taking account of his/her intellectual vigour, analytical capacity, his/her degree of personal initiative, originality in writing and discussion and his/her general knowledge of European Community Policies. The subject of personal study chosen, which should interest both the Commission and the C.F.I.A., will be subject to the approval of the Selection Committee.
